ENGAGE IN INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION

THE G30 PROGRAM

The G30 International Program at Nagoya University offers 10 undergraduate, and 27 graduate degree programs specifically designed for international students. These programs are fully taught in English, with no minimum Japanese language requirement at the time of enrollment. The G30 programs cover a wide range of disciplines, including natural sciences, engineering, social sciences, law, and economics. Some G30 Program courses also welcome NUPACE and NU-EMI students!

@nagoyauni_g30

Thanks to the tutoring system, I was able to practice teaching someone else and deepen my understanding of the subject.

It was a new experience that made me realize studying and teaching are totally different things.

I appreciate this system, as it has created a valuable opportunity for me to meet and interact with Japanese students, which is something I rarely get to do outside of G30 classes.

NU-EMI PROJECT

The NU-EMI (Nagoya University English as a Medium of Instruction) Project offers international students the chance to work as tutors for Japanese students in English-taught specialized courses, providing opportunities to study together and make friends. The project also hosts fun weekly social events, such as Food for Thought, and seminars on graduate school admissions and career paths.

GROW YOUR COMMUNITY

NUFSA

Nagoya University International Students Association is a student organization active since 1985 bridging the international and local communities. With a strong focus on inclusivity and cultural diversity, NUFSA helps international students feel at home by fostering dialogue, providing support and a sense of community. Each semester, we organize diverse events that help students connect and engage in cultural exchange. NUFSA's goal is to ensure that international students can find a family away from home, while enriching campus life for all.
